

I ‘divorced’ my Broker 10 years ago intending to manage my share portfolio myself. With little experience I was willing to learn all I could about technical analyses believing this to be the ‘holy grail’ of successful trading. I developed the art of “whatever you want to see in a chart, there is an indicator that will cement your view”! My success was poor, to say the least, and I wondered what really made a good trader.

Quantum methodologies and the accompanying Trademaster software were introduced to me at a seminar in South Africa in 2004. It could not have come at a better time. Over time I developed the discipline of consistency and objectivity. I now know, after four years of trading, that the probabilistic edge, so scientifically tested by the ShareFinder team works, and has grown my capital base according to my expectations.

I am very grateful for the knowledge I have gained to become a successful mechanical trader, from adhering to the principles of this trading system. I can recommend it to anyone who wants a medium term trading system that will greatly increase profitability in their trading..
